"Wolfert's Roost" Sage Goes to See Rogers Bros., but Widegauge Headgear on Obstinate Female's Head. Prevents.

B. Hill is not quite sure has seen "The Rogers Brothers in Paris" or not. He occupied scat in the orchestra of the New Arosterdam Theatre and heard the music, but a woman with a picture hat occupied a seat three rows ahead the theatre and took seats on the atsle in the sixth row of the orchestra. The woman with a hat, a large hat with luxurious spreading feathers, which she was quite willing to have admired. soon came in and sat down in a scat three rows ahead of Mr. Hill.

When the curtain arose Mr. Hill saw the hat. He didn't see much else. Then an usher came to the rescue and requested the woman to remove her flar-

"I shall do nothing of the kind," . she replied. "It's my hat and I'm going to wear it. I'm so far down front that it doesn't bother anybody and I don't care

After this somewhat heated reply the usher retired discomfited.

The Rogers Brothers came on and sang their opening song and Mr. Hill counted the feathers on the hat. Then there was a dance number, and the beauties of the chorus came into viewthat, is into the view of all in the audience but Mr. Hill. His view was confined to the hat.

The hat began to grow on the "Sage of Wolfert's Roost" after a while, but he managed to forget it when Josephine Cohan began to do a song over at one aide of the stage. Mr. Hill liked that but Josephine remembered the first duty of an actress and returned to the centre of the stage, and Mr. Hill-well, Mr. Hill resumed his view of the hat.

Mark Luescher saw his predicament and politely requested the woman to remove the hat, but again she refused.

Then Luescher offered to change Mr.
Hill's seat, but he said it was hardly worth while, and besides, he had grown to like the hat. He stuck the programme out to the end, but he is in doubt to-day as to whether he saw the show or just a hat.

FLEET CLERK RUNS DOWN A SUSPECT

Catches After Exciting Street Chase Man Alleged to Have Stolen Box of Furs from an Express Wagon.

After an exciting pursuit for five a man who gave his name as Charles Smith, swenty-two years old, of detectives of the Mercer street station early to-day. Smith is alleged to have taken a box of furs from an American Express Company wagon as it stood in front of the company's office, at No. 15 East Fourth street.

He was seen by Frank Dollery, a clerk employed in the office, so it is charged, as he started to run off with the box. Dollery set up a shout and started in pursuit. Smith ran through Fourth street to Lafayette place, and then turned up to Astor place. There he cow that he was hampered by his burden and dropped the box.

Dollery caught up with him at Eighth street, and after a short struggle threw him to the ground, where he held him until detectives Parker and Kenny, of the Mercer street station, came up. They took Smith to the station, where he, the police may, admitted that he is an exconvict and that he has only recently been released from prison.

The fare were found where he had

Arthur D. Wyman Run Down by a Machine Owned and Operated by Leon Strauss, One of Students.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Sept. 29.-Arthur D. Wyman, an instructor in the chemical laboratory of Harvard, and son of Charles F. Wyman, the Russian Consul at Boston, was struck and fa-tally injured by an automobile just be-fore midnight. He died at the Stillman infirmary at Harvard to-day. The automobile was owned and operated by Leon Strauss, a student of Harvard.

The accident occurred on Massachusetts avenue. Mr. Wyman, in company with another instructor, R. C. Wells was taking a stroll and was crossing the street near Harvard Bridge when the machine suddenly appeared and struck Mr. Wyman before he noticed

DISTRUSTED SHAW'S CHECK.

CHICAGO, Sept. 29.—Secretary of the United States Treasury Leslie M. Shaw had difficulty in having a modest-sized check cashed at the Audiforium Hotel last evening. The woman cashler told him he would have to be identified below as he would honor the check.

The manager was summoned and he consented to take a chance by cashing the Leck.

Pelson in Oriental Rugs.

(From the Philadelphia Record.)

A salesman employed in the rug department of a big Market street store died of blood poisoning the other day, and since then no one in the establishment is permitted to handle any new importations that have not been fumigated unless gloves are worn. The salesman in question had scratched one of his fingers with a pin, and the supposition is that in opening a bale of rugs that Dd just come from the Orient has bad become inoculated with poison which resulted fatally, "It's a wonder to me," said a friend of the victim. "That such cases are not more common. I have travelled through Turkey and Armenia, where most of the rugs are manufactured on hand looms amid filth and squalor almost indescribable, where the most loathsome of diseases are everywhere in evidence. These products, while beautiful from an artistle point of view, may readily carry germs to other countries that might' spread all sorts of horrible contagion."
